1. What is the Future Perfect Tense?

- The Future Perfect Tense describes an action that will be completed before a specific point in time or another event in the future.
- (Think of looking back from a future checkpoint at a task that is already finished.)

2. Sentence Structure & Formulas

Sentence Type	Formula / Rule	Example
Positive (+)	Subject + will have + Past Participle ($V_3$)	By 8 PM, Emma will have finished dinner.
Negative (-)	Subject + will not have (won't have) + Past Participle ($V_3$)	They won't have arrived before midnight.
Question (?)	Will + Subject + have + Past Participle ($V_3$) + ?	Will you have completed the report by noon?

3. Key Uses & Guidelines

An action finished before a specific future deadline:

- By next Monday, the crew will have built the wooden bridge.

An action finished before another future event (often introduced by 'before' or 'by the time'):

- By the time the bell rings, Liam will have packed his school bag.

4. Critical Rules & Common Traps

Rule 1: Always use "have" after "will", never "has".

-  Incorrect: He will has left by 5 PM.
-  Correct: He will have left by 5 PM.

Rule 2: Always use the Past Participle (V3) form of the verb.

-  Incorrect: They will have finish their work.
-  Correct: They will have finished their work.

Rule 3: In time clauses starting with "before" or "by the time", use the Simple Present Tense, not the future tense.

-  Incorrect: By the time she will arrive, we will have left.
-  Correct: By the time she arrives, we will have left.

5. Signal Words (Time Markers)

Common time phrases that signal the Future Perfect Tense:

- By + specific time/day: by 6 PM, by tomorrow, by Friday, by next year
- By the time + clause: by the time the train departs, by the time dad comes home
- Before + event/time: before sunset, before the meeting starts
- In + duration: in two weeks' time, in three months
