What is Gender?

- Gender in grammar tells whether a noun or pronoun refers to a male, female, both, or neither.
- Every living being and some objects can be described using gender forms.

Examples:

- Masculine: The boy is playing football. He is happy.
- Feminine: The girl is reading. She is quiet.
- Common: The teacher is kind.
- Neuter: The car is fast. It runs smoothly.

Types of Gender

Type	Meaning	Examples
Masculine Gender	Refers to male persons or animals	man, boy, father, king, lion, actor, uncle, he
Feminine Gender	Refers to female persons or animals	woman, girl, mother, queen, lioness, actress, aunt, she
Common Gender	Refers to either male or female	child, student, teacher, friend, baby, doctor
Neuter Gender	Refers to non-living things	book, table, chair, car, computer, pencil, it

Important Notes

- Pronouns like he / him are masculine; she / her are feminine; it is neuter.
- Common gender nouns (like teacher or doctor) can refer to both male and female.
- Non-living things don't have gender — use it for them.
